An aerial photograph of a coastal city, likely in Portugal, showing a mix of traditional and modern architecture. In the foreground, a balcony with a wooden railing is visible on the right. The city features buildings with red-tiled roofs, a prominent pink building with a dark roof, and a modern white building with a green roof. A swimming pool is visible in the lower right. The city extends to the coast, where the blue sea meets the shore under a clear blue sky with a few clouds.
